Dear Rex,

Thank you for letter which I received yesterday afternoon.

We've had fun together and if our paths should ever cross again will be friends. It is a good thing that this has ended when it did, at a time when we can still wish each other the best.

The good byes have been said and farewell has been spoken and may God bless your path, as I know He has and will bless mine.

This love was to be a passing thing in both our lives. May it ~~be~~ have been a worthwhile experience and a way in which we can both draw closer to God. We are yet young and have most of our lives to live ahead of us in happiness. So may they be lived that way.

"All things work together for good for them that love Him" said St Paul and if we believe it we shall have to take God's will as it is revealed to us.

May this be my parting thought although you will be long remembered.

Yours sincerely
Kartini.
